Closeups Of Moon Landing Site Lost

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - Low-level sequence camera views of the prime moon landing site were lost on Apollo 10 when the camera was suddenly jarred off its proper aiming point, officials said to-

The pictures, taken by Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford and Navy Cmdr. Eugene A. Cernan, came when they dipped the lunar module to within 49,000 feet of the moon and passed over the prime landing site.

Officials said the motion picture camera gave excellent views of the approach to the landing site but that just before passing over the landing area the camera was jarred out of position and pointed too far south

The sequence camera was mounted and aimed out a window of the lunar module and however, the shadows grew worked automatically.

Officials said loss of the lowlevel sequence views of the landing site will not hurt seriously the training of the Apollo 11 moon-landing crew. They said the more important films proach to the landing site.

House Hunters Urged To Buy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - The president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards advised home seekers today to buy now because indications are the prices will continue to climb and demand increase.

John Coton said in a speech to the Indianapolis Real Estate Board that the median price of single-family existing homes was $21,160 in March, 7.4 per cent higher than a year earlier.

He reported that a survey of 100 boards of realtors showed sales volume was up 10 per cent from March 1968.

The state standard on particulates (smoke) would have the effect of requiring reduction of smoke from commercial stacks by 50 per cent in new or expanded plants.

Refineries and chemical plants would be confronted with a new regulations governing hydrogen sulfide, which smells like rotten eggs, and a tightened regulation of sulfur dioxide, an odorous substance inurious to plants which also darkens some house paints.

No new regulation was predicted in the near future for nitrogen dioxide, which is what gives smog its brown haze. Hope of meeting a new standard for carbon monoxide would lie in eventual tightening of auto exhaust rules, Callaghan said.

The advisory council was asked by directors of the Bay Area Air Pollution District for its views on the proposed state standards. The council will make its report after study by a committee.

Motorcycle Gang Member Faces Weapon Count

A member of a Petaluma motorcycle gang which is warring with a Santa Rosa gang was arrested in Petaluma last night for carrying a concealed weapon, police said today.

Police said Kenneth Dwight Hawkins, of 877 Grant Street, had a revolver and a 6-inch hunting knife in his car when he was stopped on a routine traffic check. Police found the weapons after Hawkins' young son told them, "My daddy has a knife and a gun." Hawkins was held in lieu of $1,250 bail for an appearance in Southern Sonoma Municipal

Gilbert Fullam, 23, an Extender who lives at 1771 Grant Avenue, Apt. 4, Novato, was shot during the rumble and Misfit Arthur Eugene Worrell of Santa Rosa has been charged with assault with intent to commit murder. ON VIOLENCE: The Antidote-Love Of God

By RAV. DAVID POLING President, Christian Herald Association

Our period in history is joined to the past by our indulgence in violent and brutal behavior. One does not have to explore the activities of a warfare society to know that we are like every other culture and community in our calculated use of force and power. This is one of the central truths of mankind: That every century seems to have its own special quality of conflict and combat.

Right now the Congress has been considering the violent exercise of so much television programming. The home viewing screen is saturated with plots and intrigue that finally end in violent death for somebody. The entertainment of such films is exceeded only by the horror that passes as news from the battlefields of Vietnam. Violence is not really the fault of the broadcasters or the Pentagon strategists — they are simply giving the public what it demands.

And sports has a good dose of controlled violence. Professional football, according to its top employe, Joe Namath, is simply brutality by the numbers. Rodeos and bullfights, karate clubs and cockfights are all part of our weekend diversions.

AT THIS POINT one wishes that the religious community could say a good word concerning its own record of love, caring and concern. But any student of the Bible knows too well that the fury of man is a frequent participant in the affairs of religion. To love God and to serve him faithfully does not mean an automatic deferment from the defilements of life.

Joseph is sold into slavery by his brothers. Jeremiah sits in prison. John the Baptist is beheaded at Herod's command. Jesus goes to the Cross. If this were the whole story, the Christian community would be in the greatest delusion of all.

Out of slavery, Joseph brought aid and comfort to his people. Jeremiah is remembered long after his prison punishment. John the Baptist brought truth and the vision of Christ which neither Herod nor his henchmen could silence. Jesus seized the Cross and gives the whole world hope and joy.

VIOLENCE IS PART of the scene but it will yield to the Kingdom of Love. As Arnold Toynbee in his new book, "Experiences," says so ably:

"Love gives life a purpose and meaning and value that cannot be found, in human life at any rate, so long as this is lived for its own sake. The absolute value of love makes life worth-while, and so makes man's strange and difficult situation acceptable. Love cannot save life from death, but it can fulfill life's purpose."

And to that the men and women of faith would add, love never ends and violence will cease in the purpose of God.

Burger Speech Hints New Direction For Court

Earl Warren has had a profound influence on the U.S. Supreme Court, and through it, on our whole system of criminal justice. Washington writers commenting on the selection of Warren E. Burger to succeed Warren have generally indicated they do not expect him to exert a comparable influence. They view him more as a justice who will apply the brakes, describing him as a "law and order judge," a strict constructionist.

It may be, however, that as chief justice, Burger will exert a much greater influence than the se writers expect.

SOME INTERESTING background on the selection of Burger has been sent us by Herbert G. Klein, the President's director of communications. According to Klein: "In arriving at his historic decision to nominate Judge Warren E. Burger as chief justice of the United States, one of the factors that influenced President Nixon was an address by Judge Burger" at Ripon College, Appleton, Wis., in 1967.

Klein sent along a report from U. S. News and World Report of Aug. 7, 1967, which consisted of lengthy excerpts from that address.

Here is some of the philosophy of the new chief justice-designate as he expressed it in 1967 - philosophy which, according to Klein, strongly influenced his selection by the Presi-

"NO NATION on earth goes to such lengths or takes such pains to provide safeguards as we do, once an accused person is called before the bar of justice."

Despite this, however, said Judge Burger, maintenance of the "American system of ordered liberty" may have been damaged by failure to "maintain a reasonable balance between the collective need and the individual right."

He suggested that the many avenues of appeal open to the accused, each contested on technical legal grounds on an adversary basis, may defeat their purpose by keeping a defendant too long in jeopardy - too long at war with society. He described it as "a system of prolonged conflict . . in which we have glorified and idealized the adversary system with its clash and contest of advocates."

CONTRASTING the almost interminable prolonging of major criminal cases in the United States with their much more expeditious handling in such countries as Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Holland ("as enlightened as the United States in the value they place on the individual and on human dignity"), he posed these ques-

"Is a society which frequently takes five to 10 years to dispose of a single criminal case entitled to call itself an 'organized' society? Is a judicial system which consistently finds it necessary to try a criminal case three, four or five times deserving of the confidence and respect of decent people?"

In a refreshingly honest view of his own profession, he declared:

"We lawyers and judges sometimes tend to fall in love with procedures and techniques and formalism. But as war is too important to be left to generals, justice is far too important to be left exclusively to the technicians of the law."

Then Judge Burger concluded his the shock of reading your

"SHOULD YOU COME to the conclusion . . . that we lawyers have built up a process that is inadequate or archaic or which is too cumbersome or too complex ... or if for any reason you think the system does not meet the tests of social utility and fairness, you have a remedy. You have the right and the ultimate power to change it.

"Neither the laws nor the Constitution are too sacred for change - we have changed the Constitution many times — and the decisions of judges are not holy writ.

"These things are a means to an end, not an end in themselves. They are tools to serve you, not masters to

If Warren E. Burger, as head of the federal court system, pursues the philosophy he set forth in that 1967 speech - as President Nixon presumably hopes he will - he may have an even more profound effect on the administration of justice in this country than has Earl Warren.

We have another suggestion for the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District: Since insecticides unquestionably introluce poisons into the air, shouldn't the district move into control in that field? This could keep it even busier than checking the size of turpentine cans.

"I'm going to miss it!"

BOTTLENECK—This view looking down Picnic Avenue from a point opposite a lot which is zoned for 40 apartment units shows extreme congestion on narrow street, alluded to in "What Our Readers Say" letters below. Use permit for four structures with a total of 40 apartments on the lot was denied by the San Rafael City Council. However, under the zoning the same number of apartments may be put in a single building without a use permit. (Photo by Frank Strom)

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Traffic Congestion On Narrow Street

I have just recovered from one-sided editorial published in the I-J on May 22 under the heading: "Council Caprice Matches That of County Planning." Of course you neglected to include the caption: "This is a paid political announcement." This is just exactly what it sounded like to me.

I note that you very carefully avoided the mention that Picnic Avenue is a substandard street - being only 30 feet in width. Gutters 10 to 12 inches in depth necessitate the fact that automobiles must park three feet from the curb thus giving us only 24 feet of usable street. The average car takes about six feet and six inches of space and when we get one car parked on each side of the street we have only an 11 foot one way street! Picnic Avenue has no sidewalks in this area and the school children are forced to walk in the street. The promoters of Picnic Hill Properties will never be able to provide enough parking space within their project to guarantee that the residents of Picnic Valley will not be continually faced with this congestion on this narrow sub-standard

Our hats are off to our Mayor Bettini and the city council for their courageous stand in the face of the pressure from the Get Rich Quick Money Men! We need more city councils like San Rafael's with guts to act in the face of stiff opposition!

In closing, I wish to extend a slap on the wrist to the I-J's editorial staff for a very onesided presentation!

Fire Hazard Seen On Picnic Avenue

Our attention has been directed to your editorial of May 22, regarding construction of 40 housing units on 1.4 acres at 237 Picnic Avenue, Admittedly, the situation you describe is an unfortunate one. However, when you say that we, the residents of the area, were negligent in not protesting the rezoning in 1959, you presume that all of us had effective notice of the zoning change at

Actually, we do not know how many residents of Picnic Valley had notice of the proposed zoning change at that time and why effective protest a series of bumps, followed by

was not made at that time. Be that as it may, you may have to consider the fact that that was 10 years ago, and there are many residents here now were not here at that time. Moreover, there are also some who may have lived here at that time but who were not old enough to make any objection then .

We wonder if at the time of rezoning in 1959, all pertinenet facts relevant to the proper zoning of this lot were considered. Let us, for instance consider the fire hazard. Here is an area of 1.4 acres with a narrow front facing a substandard street. Obviously there can be only one point of entrance and exit . . . With or without cars parked on narrow, substandard Pienic Avenue, how would fire equipment get into the area, especially if there is congestion of people and vehicles trying to get out of the only exit and entrance. Would there not be a great fire hazard to the tenants? We know of a house that was totally destroyed by fire simply because the fire fighting equipment could not negotiate the substandard streets.

. . . It may be that a tremendous error was committed in the zoning, and if this is so, obviously the present planning commission and city council must give serious consideration to correcting the error . . .

We have here again a situation where one must weigh human rights against property rights. Is it the editor's position in such situations that human rights must be sacrificed to property rights?

No wonder taxes stay so high.

There is a more serious example of this total lack of perspective which affects us in heavily wooded Marin County. Those of us concerned about the late summer fire hazards burn much of the inflammable brush and trash from our trees during the rainy season, when air pollution is at its lowest. As of Jan. 1, 1970, by order of the Air Pollution Control District, such burning will be an of-

The district's own figures for 1967 show that the elimination of all incineration in Marin County will reduce the pollutants in the district by only four tenths of one per cent. For this unmeasurable improvement in air pollution levels we are not asked but ordered to accept a greatly increased fire hazard as this trash accumulates - for no debris box service can hope to cope with the bulk involved.

Must we suffer a repetition of the disastrous fires which ravaged Marin in 1929 before we do something about this foolishness?

Nixon's Chief Justice Nominee Fits In No Tight Pigeonhole

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

spective chief justice of the United States, Judge Warren Burger, can influence the trend of the Supreme Court, it will move in two new direc-

1/8. Toward taking some of the court-created legal restraints off the police and the courts in the enforcement of criminal law.

2. Toward greater regard for the separation of powers between the Congress, the President and the courts. There "is no reason why we as judges," Judge Burger wrote in one of his decisions, "should regard ourselves as some kind of guardian elders ordained to review the political judgments of elected representatives of the people."

But mush will remain the same. What would almost certainly remain the same would be the court's unbroken line of decisions buttressing every provision of the Constitution and every act of Congress across the entire range of civil rights, human rights and political rights and in requiring from every arm of government - country, city, state and federal - equal and nonidscriminatory protection for all under the law.

Your editorial on the ex- JUDGE BURGER isn't saytions in which he hopes to move the court. His past decisions say so.

But considering all of the evidence from these decisions, it is unwise to try to pigenhole Judge Burger as a conservative jurist

He doesn't fit into a pigeonhole. He doesn't think in pigeonholes.

On confirmation. Judge Burger is getting warm praise from political conservatives and virtually no criticism from political liberals.

He will undoubtedly please and displease both - just as Justice Felix Frankfurter pleased liberals when his early votes upheld controversial

WASHINGTON - If the pro- New Deal measures passed by a liberal Congress and surprised and pleased conservatives when he upheld controversial conservative laws passed by conservative state legislatures.

President Nixon sees Justice Frankfurter as the kind of "strict constructionist" he talked about in the campaing, and Judge Burger is seen in a like pattern.

IT IS, THEREFORE, crucially important to understand what kind of a strict constructionist Judge Burger is almost certain to be. His past record is clear; there is no evidence that he would be disposed to knock out innovative liberal legislation passed by a liberal Congress any more than he would disallow innovative conservative legislation passed by a conservative Congress. Here is the way he put it in one of his decisions: "The nature of our system, which seems to have escaped notice occasionally, must make manifest to judges that we are neither gods nor godlike, but judicial officers with narrow and limited authority. Our entire system of government would suffer incalculable mischief should judges attempt to oppose the judicial will above that of the Congress and the President, even were we so bold as to assume we can make better decisions on such issues."

IT IS AMPLY evident that Judge Burger is a strong law-and-order jurist. He believes the courts have gone too far in overprotecting the accused and underprotecting so-

But the Supreme Court, in the stop-and-frisk decision, for example, has started to move away from this. There is no sign that Judge Burger would vote to delude the historic protections of the individual.

Judge Burger is no stereotype judicial conservative. He is independent, tough and compassionate.

Hershey To Be Shelved; Successor Search Starts

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's aides are quietly hunting for a new draft director to replace Lt. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey and brighten the tarnished image of the Selective Service system.

Ideally, a new director would revamp the muchcriticized draft machinery using the reform proposals which the President sent to Congress last week. Even if Congress drags its feet on those reforms, however, a new director would serve as a sign

There are hints that Hershey's replacement may not be another military man. Some administration aides are said to feel that a civilian director would make the draft seem less of a military procurement office for the Penta-

So far there is no widely advertised search for a new man. Feelers are out, however, and it is significant that some of Hershey's longtime supporters in the House and Senate are passing the word that it is time for the general to bow out gracefully.

Moreover, unlike Hoover and the FBI. Hershey and the draft have come under heavy critical fire in the turmoil which has arisen from the war in Vietnam. The courts have been dealing harshly with Hershey's attempts to use the draft's induction machinery to punish fomentors of turmoil.

ADMINISTRATION aides who want to put a civilian in the Selective Service command post talk about naming an educator to succeed Hershey, though they concede that the job may offer fryingpan-to-fire disadvantages for administrators on beleaguered college campuses.

At least one military man is being mentioned, however. He is Gen. Harold I. Johnson, former Army chief of staff.

It is argued that Johnson would also give a new look to Selective Service, since it is no secret that he was no enthusiast for escalation of the Vietnam war. Many Pentagon authorities think he was dropped by President Johnson for that

Plenty Of Things To Note-But They Don't All Make Sense

This is a notebook.

Johnnie Cheever says he has to write to make sense out of his life. Many do it just for the money. We like to note.

For example, we noted on Monday: The San Rafael City Council chamber where the Tamalpais Creek hearing was held is like a theater. It's very attractive and has a foyer for between acts.

ART BUCHWALD Leave It To Walter Cronkite;

He'll Get Us To The Moon WASHINGTON - We had

another space shot success this week, and while I still get excited about these things, I notice that every time we have a splashdown, more and more people look at me as if to say 'what else is new?" I discovered this is particularly true of people under 21 years of age.

During the recent Apollo flights, I found my wife and myself spending more and more time in front of the TV set while our children were sulking somewhere in the house because their favorite TV show had been pre-empted.

"COME DOWN and see pictures of the moon," I would yell, only to hear someone upstairs yell back, "We're already seen pictures of the moon.

"But these are in color." "There's nothing to see but

'But they're not even on this planet," I would yell back up. A voice would come back bitterly, "They shouldn't have taken 'Lucy' off the air."

ALL THE NETWORKS do a good job on these space shots. I like Jules Bergman of ABC, and I'm always indebted to Frank McGee for his chalk talks on what is going on there in outer space. But without disparaging the job these fine men do, my wife and I seem to identify more with Walter

My wife identifies with Cronkite even more than she does with the astronauts.

If Walter's relaxed, she's relaxed - if Walter gets nervous, my wife gets nervous. Walter Cronkite, more than anyone else, sees us through these shots, and we really count on him to get the Apollo capsules back safely to earth.

Now Snoopy was on its second pass at the moon. After jettisoning its descent stage engine, it started up its 3,-500-pound thrust engine which was supposed to get it back to the mother Apollo ship, Charlie Brown.

Suddenly something went wrong, and we head Cernan's voice say, "Son of a bitch!" Walter, who up to that time was calmly telling us what was happening, became seri-

"He's not going to scrub it." I said, "but he wants to know exactly what happened before he gives the OK on Apollo 11. You can't blame him."

A few minutes later, Walter, looking much less tense, came back to tell us that the trouble had been a switch that didn't turn on. He said that, although it gave him a fright, the moon shot would take place in July. My wife sighed. "I knew

A Family Atmosphere For Retarded

Second in a series describing the goals of an inter-agency committee searching for substitute homes for Marin men, women and children in need of a warm and understanding at-

"Everyone has the right to achieve his potential, and the only way for a mentally retarded person to reach his is to be out in the world," says Miriam Comito.

And fortunately Miriam Comito is a doer - not just a talker. Her doing has provided a substitute home for four young men who are mentally retarded.

A FORMER social worker and VISTA volunteer, Mrs. Comito decided in 1967 to devote the rest of her life as well as her life savings to helping retarded young men, who she feels with help and understanding can become productive members of society.

"I joined VISTA in 1966," she explains. "My husband's illness had confined him to a hospital, and I had to fullfill a need to be needed."

Her husband, Ernest Comito, was an attorney until he became ill with Huntington's disease. He is hospitalized in Palo Alto.

VISTA sent Mrs. Comito to Chicago for training in a half-way house for the mentally ill. Following the training period she was sent back to San Francisco to work with the vocational evaluation program of the Aid to Retarded Children agency.

"I VISITED private homes that cared for retarded persons and Sonoma State Hospital," she recalls, "and I was shocked In private homes they were receiving nothing more than room and board. There were five or six to a room and not even a picture on the wall. No one should have to live like that."

Mrs. Comito describes her home as a living-learning experience for the young men, who are between the ages of 18 and 25.

And don't call them children," she warns. "We live as a family, but I am their teacher, not a substitute mother, since they all have families,

Authorities in the field of mentally retarded persons feel in many cases it is best for them to live outside of their own homes for a variety of reasons. In their natural homes some are overprotected, some are neglected and others require too much of the parents' time, causing them to neglect other children. SECOND SECTION

IN THE HOME, the young men live as a family, sharing the worries about finances, giving parties and taking care

"They are very, very nice boys," says Mrs. Loyd Sutherland, who lives next door. "I couldn't ask for nicer neighbors, and I would rather have them than any family with six

Mrs. Comito is especially proud of the progress made by two of the youths, Bruce and Barry, who are employed in a hospital kitchen.

"NOT ONLY are they self supporting now," Mrs. Comito points out, "but instead of receiving tax money for support, they have become contributing

Discussing the need for other homes similar to hers in Marin County, Mrs. Comito feels to some persons you must point out the financial saving to the taxpayer, rather than the needs of handicapped

"Vocational training and a family atmosphere where the learning process can continue are what they need to become productive members of society. Eventually some of my other boys will be employable, and there is no reason they can't live on their own some-

Thursday, May 29, 1969 Mrs. Comito feels that with a small amount of supervision some retarded persons can live independently and marry. "If they do live alone someone should check on them to be sure they do not go into a shell," she explains, "but after the atmosphere of a home like mine they should be prepared for the outside world.'

Where would these young men be if they were not living hearing. with Mrs. Comito?

"The alternative to a foster home is a state institution," explains Mary Michelson of the Golden Gate Regional Center, a state agency concerned with the mentally retarded.

"In an overcrowded institution such as Sonoma State Hospital they will not learn skills and have no chance of becoming independent." she says. "The need for persons to

Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Kimball, who live on Huckleberry Road in Lucas Valley, want to open their home to six. mentally retarded children, but Marin Aid to Retarded Children withdrew the request before the Marin County Zoning administrator because the Kimballs' neighbors voiced strong opposition to the home.

At a recent meeting of the Marinwood Community Services District, where the pros and cons of recommending whether or not the request should be granted, the most frequent argument against allowing the Kimbails to board children was that it would lower property values.

A teen-age boy remarked during the meeting that he could not believe what he was

This is an up-up-and-away.

It serves champagne and movies and jets you to somewhere wonderful. We hope you have the best vacation ever and we'd love to make it more so by solving all your clothes problems before you go. We have marvelous pants things to travel in. We have heaps of nothing-weight dresses that keep your baggage the same way. We have a whole bunch of temperature-defying clothes that let you country-hop and altitude-hop without carrying three seasons' worth of clothes. And being practical as well as chic (which is no compromise these days), we have beach things and boat things and mountain things and metropolitan things that can be washed and dried-period. Once you get there, the language may be a problem, but never your clothes. Like to up-up-and-away this way? Then book a little time with us now.

Councilman Holmes S. Norville. have to recognize "they got to pay."

NEXT MEETING — Additional Councilman Holmes S. Norville. night questioned the extent of commission control over shore- ferred to the Marin City-County Madera. line development.

Joseph E. Bodovitz of Mill Valley, the commission's executive director, told the Marin Council of Mayors and Councilmen there wasn't any intent to interfere with local zoning or building controls in 75 per cent of the area.

The commission's main concern is with large expanses of water, such as the salt ponds in the South Bay, areas of regional importance such as airports and ports and increasing public access to the bay.

LITTLE ACCESS

In Marin's 42 miles of shoreline, there are only "several hundred feet of permanent public access" to the bay, Bodovitz contended.

On bills before the legislature to continue controls of bay filling, Bodovitz explained that the bill by Assemblyman John T. Knox. D-Richmond, would extend control up to 1,000 feet inland while a bill by Sen. Richard J. Dolwig, R-San Mateo, would extend control 100 feet inland.

Tiburon Mayor Branwell D. Fanning wanted to know what affect the controls would have over development of Southern Pacific Railroad's property along Tiburon's waterfront.

Bodovitz said the only control in that case would be to provide public access to the bay wherever feasible. To allay fears that local control would be lost, Bodovitz noted that the "strongest single block" on the commission consists of representatives of local government, nine members appointed by county supervisors and three by the Association of Bay Area Governments.

CORTE MADERA QUIZ

Corte Madera Town Mgr. Ronald Usher asked why Corte Madera was given a different priority than other areas in (Early this year the commission rejected a plan to develop more than half of a 96-acre marshland parcel at the mouth of Corte Madera Creek, a plan approved by the Corte Madera Town Council.)

Bodovitz said the Corte Madera shoreline has characteristics "that don't exist elsewhere in Southern Marin," and that the city could seek to have the commission's maps for that area

Melville Owen of Kentfield, a commissioner, said that by asking for extended life the commission wasn't asking people to "accept a pig in a poke," but an organization that "has a track record."

He presented a 15-minute color film about the bay, produced by the commission.

MOTION TABLED

Tiburon Councilman Denis T. Rice made a motion that the mayors and councilmen's council support the Dolwin and Knox bills, but Corte Madera Town Councilman Holmes S. Norville countered that the motion be tabled.

Other councilmen said the group had already gone on record favoring extending the life of BCDC, and no vote was taken.

WHEN IS RIVER LIKE A TREE?

What appears to be a photo of a burning tree actually is an aerial photo—taken from 13,750 feet—of the Colorado River Delta near the California-Mexico border. The main course of the river is the dark area at bottom. The river as it nears the Gulf of California chokes itself with mud and sand and creates the strange pattern, according to U.S. Geological Survey experts. (Department of Interior photo via UPI)

Man Between Appraises Twins, A's

OAKLAND — As a pre-season study of the bloodlines indicated, the A's and Minnesota are keeping cozy in the American League's Western Division race. They may be taking turns in first place in these first months, but that indeed figures to be the pattern all the way.

Neither club is the type to bend to external pressure. Oakland is young enough to believe anything is possible; the Twins

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Expect An Uneven Or Worse Break When Six Cards Missing

One of my informants in the heart to assure the game and Bureau of the Census reports rubber. that bridge players in the United States alone lost $7 million in the first five months of 1969 by and the next player passes. You relying on six missing cards in hold a suit to be divided 3-3. The Internal Revenue Service won't allow them to show these losses on their income tax returns because this column has repeatedly warned all good citizens to expect a 4-2 break or worse.

South ruffed the second diamond, drew four rounds of trumps and then started on the hearts. When the hearts failed to become established after he had led the ace, king and queen, South had no further play for his contract. He might have escaped for down one, but actually led a club to dummy's king and went down two.

The result should not have been a surprise since the odds are almost 2 to 1 against a 3-3 break in hearts. To cope with a 4-2 break, South should plan to ruff a heart in dummy.

Instead of drawing trumps, South should begin on the hearts immediately after ruffing the second diamond. South takes the ace and king of hearts and then leads a low heart in the hope of ruffing it safely with dummy's eight of spades.

PLAN WORKS

This line of play would be quite safe if each opponent held three hearts because each would then follow suit while South ruffed the third heart in dummy. South would also be safe against a 4-2 break in hearts as long as the player with only two hearts did not hold the ten of trumps.

The plan works in today's hand. When South leads the low heart after taking the ace and king, West is out of hearts but cannot ruff higher than the dummy. South ruffs the third heart with dummy's eight of spades, leads dummy's trump to his own hand and draws the rest of the trumps. Then he can cash the queen of hearts and the last

In 1453 Constantinople (now Istanbul) capital of the Byzantine Empire, was captured by the Turks. Some historians say this marked the end of the Middle Ages. In 1790 Rhode Island became

A. The article was right - 7 per cent yields are available in per cent high-grade corporate bonds. However, I take exception to a statement that bonds are an inflation hedge. Bonds have been in a bear market for the last 23 years while inflation has continued almost unabated. Since World War II when price controls were removed, costs have risen so that it now requires about $15 to buy what could then be purchased for $10.

There are some indications that a rally in the bond market is possible - tightening in the money supply, step-up in peace talks and a slight rise in unem-
